

Two inverse problems in geophysics

Tan Yongji
Department of Mathematics
Fudan University
China

In this report, the mathematical modeling and numerical solutions for inverse problems to identify the resistivity and permeability in well-logging and underground water are investigated. Some numerical examples show that in some cases, genetic algorithm is a strong tool to solve inverse problems.